To whom it may concern,

As working artists, my husband and I have never been made of money. But our taxes are always complicated. Between the two of us, we have one part-time job at a major corporation, one real estate business, and two arts businesses. Our taxes have never been easy and we have never felt like we had a true partner in doing them.

In the past, we have worked with an accountant who came recommended by colleagues. Our taxes turned out okay, but we dreaded preparation every year because our accountant didn't talk to us or prepare us for what might be possible. We also always wondered if we could have saved more money by understanding the process better.

Fortunately for us, we found Water Street Tax Associates. Water Street did an excellent job helping us think about our taxes before we started. When the time came to prepare our taxes, we had a handle on the details and we knew what to expect. The stress of doing taxes was completely eliminated.

In the process of tying up all our loose ends, Water Street helped us find additional tax savings in the records we had already put together. The extensive research Michael did for our special federal programs for alternative energy was priceless. Our tax refund this past year was even more than we had hoped for.

Working with Water Street is the best financial decision we have made in years. We highly recommend their services for families and businesses alike.

Sincerely,
